A REGULAR MESS.

The following Japanese story was circulated in the city of Yedo some years back, and show that the better educated classes of Japanese are keenly alive to the absurdity of the figure cut by their countrymen when they attempt to jump over five hundred es a in fivehundred days;

"Some six years back lived in the beautiful village of Minoge an old lady who kept the big tea-house of the place, known as the "White Pine." Minoge is situated at the base of the holy mountain Oyama, and during the months of August and September trade in Minoge was always brisk, on account of the influx of pilgrims from all parts of Japan, who came hither to perform the holy duty of ascending the mountain, and of paying their devoirs at the shrine of the Thunder-God, previous to making the grand pilgrimage of Fuji-Yama.

The old lady was well off, and her inn bore an unblemished reputation for possessing the prettiest serving-girls, the gayest guest-chambers, and the primest stewed eels—the dish par excellence of Japanese gourmets—of any hostelry in the country-side. One of her daughters was married in Yedo, and a son was studying in one of the European colleges of that city; still she was as completely rustic and unacquainted with the march of affairs outside as if she had never heard of Yedo, much less of foreigners. At that time it was a very rare thing indeed for a foreigner to be seen in Minoge, and the stray artists and explorers who had wandered there were regarded much in the same way as would have been so many white elephants.

It caused, therefore, no little excitement in the village when, one fine autumn evening, the rumor came along that a foreigner was making his way towards the "White Pine" Every one tried to get a glimpse of him.—The chubby-cheeked boys and girls at the school threw down their books and pens, and crowded to the door and windows; the bath-house was soon empty of its patrons and patronesses, who, red as lobsters with boiling water, with disheveled locks and garments hastily bound round them, formed in line outside; the very Yakunin, or mayor, sentenced a prisoner he was judging straight off, without bothering himself to inquire into evidence, so as not to be balked of the sight, and every wine and barber's shop sent forth its quota of starers into the little street.

Meanwhile the foreigner was leisurely striding along. He was taller by far than the tallest man in Minoge, his hair was fair, and even his bronzed face and hands were fair compared to those of the natives. On the back of his head was a felt wide-awake, he wore a blue jacket and blue half trousers (Anglice, knickerbockers), thick hose and big boots. In his mouth was a pipe—being much shorter than Japanese smoking tubes—in his hand a stick, and on his back a satchel.

As he passed, one or two urchins, bolder than the rest, shouted out, "Tojin baka" ("Foreign beast) and instantly fled indoors, or behind their mothers' skirts; but the majority of the villagers simply stared, with an occasional interjection expressive of wonder at his height, fair hair and costume.

At the door of the "White Pine" he halted, unstrapped his bundle, took off his boots: and in very fair Japanese requested to be shown his room. The old lady, after a full ten minutes' posturing, complimenting, bowing, and scraping, ushered him into her best guest-chamber. "For," said she, "being a foreigner, he must be rich, and wouldn't like ordinary pilgrim accommodation." And she drew to the sliding screens, and went off to superintend his repast. Although nothing but the foreigner's boots were to be seen outside, a gaping crowd had collected, striving to peer through the cracks in the door, and regarding the boots as if they were infernal machines. One, more enterprising than the rest, took a boot up, passed it to his neighbor, and in a short time it had circulated from hand to hand throughout the population of Minoge, and was even felt and pinched by the Mayor himself, who replaced it with the reverence due to some religious emblem or relic.

Then the hostess served up her banquet—seaweed, sweets, raw "tighe"—the salmon of Japan—in slices, garnished with turnips and horse-radish, egg soup with pork lumps floating in it, chicken delicately broiled, together with a steaming bottle of her choicest 'San Toku Shiu," or wine of the Three Virtues (wh[illegible]eps out the cold, appeases hunger and induces sleep).

The fogeigner made an excellent meal, eked out by his own white bread, and wine from a flask of pure silver, then, lighting his pipe, reclined at full length on the mats, talking to the old lady and her three damsels, O Hana, O Kiku, and O Rin (Miss Flower, Miss Chrysanthemum and Miss Dragon). He was walking about the country simply for pleasure, he said—which astonished the women greatly—he had been away from Yohohama three weeks, and was now on his way to the big mountain. The party were soon screaming with laughter at his quaint remarks and at his occasional colloquial slips, and in a short time all were such good friends that the old lady begged him to display the contents of his satchel. "Certainly," said the stranger, pulling it towards him and opening it. A dirty flannel shirt or two didn't produce much impression—perhaps wares of a similar nature had been imported before into Minoge—nor did a hair-brush, tooth-brush, and comb; but when he pulled out a pistol, which was warranted to go off six times in as many seconds, and proceeded to exemplify the same in the air, popular excitement began to assert itself in a series of "naruhodo's" ("really!"). Then he pulled out a portable kerosene lamp—(kerosene lamps are now as common in Japan as shrines by the road-side)—and the light it made, throwing entirely into the shade the native "andon," or oil wick, burning close by, raised the enthusiasm still higher.—Lastly he showed a small box of medicines, "certain cures" said he," for every disease known among the sons of men."

The old lady and the maids were enchanted, and matters ended, after much haggling and disputation, in the foreigner allowing them to keep the three articles for the very reasonable sum of fifty dollars, which was handed over to the foreigner, who called for his bedding and went fast asleep.

The first thing for the old lady to do the next day was to present herself and maids in full holiday costume with their recent purchases at the house of the Mayor. The great man received them and their goods with the dignity befitting hi rank, and promised that a public trial should be made of the pistol, lamp, and medicines, at an early date, in order to determine whether they were worthy to be adopted as institutions in the village.

Accordingly, by proclamation, at a fixed date and hour, all Minoge assembled in the open space facing the Mayor's house, and the articles were brought forth. The pistol was first taken and loaded, as directed by the foreigner, by the boldest and strongest man in the village. The first shot was fired—it wounded a pack-horse, standing some twenty yards away, in the leg; he took fright and bolted with a heavy load of wine tubs down the street into the fields; the second shot went through a temple roof opposite, and shattered the head of the deity in the shrine; the third perforated the bamboo hut of a pilgrim; and it was decided not to test the other three barrels.

Then the lamp was brought forth; the wick was turned up full, and the village strong man applied a light. The blaze of light was glorious, and drew forth the acclamations of the crowd; but the wick had been turned up too high, the glass burst with a tremendous report, the strong man dropped the lamp, the oil ignited, ran about and set fire to the matting. In ten minutes, however, the local fire brigade got the flames under, and the experiments proceeded.

The medicine packets were brought forth. The first was a grey powder. A man who had been lame from youth upwards was made to limp out. The powder mixed with water, according to directions, was given him. He hobbled away in frightful convulsions, and nearly injured his whole limb in so doing.

The second packet was then unsealed; it contained pills. A blind man was called out—six pills were rammed down his throat, and he was left wallowing in a ditch. The third packet, a small book containing sticking plaster, was then introduced. A burly peasant, victim to fearful toothache, was made to stand forth. The interior of his mouth was lined with the plaster, and when he attempted in his disgust to pull it off, away came his skin also.

The medicines were condemned nem. con.

The foreigner returned, asked how matters had gone, and was told in polite, but firm, terms, that his machines were not suited to the people of Minoge. Whereupon he returned the fifty dollars to the old lady of the "White Pine," and went away laughing. Minoge subsided into its ordinary every-day groove of life, and it was not till some years after that the inhabitants became better used to pisto's, lamps, and European medicines.—Belgravia.

Those who study the stars will have plenty of occupation in the coming years. The index hand on the dial-plate points to events of momentous import. The four great planets reach the nearest point to the sun nearly together than they have done for almost two thousand years. It is not unreasonable to suppose that with their strong pull, and pull altogether, they will create some unusual disturbance in the chaotic elements that make up the sun's fiery mass. The forces of the new spot cycle are now in active operation, and those who have closely watched the influence of the solar disturbance on climate conditions predict a hot Summer from the heat-waves that follow the commencement of the tremendous solar outbreaks. The hidden chambers of the great pyramid have given forth in oracular fashion momentous prophecies for 1881, to the few deciples who have faith in their teachings, and astrologers cast strange horoscopes from the unusual planetary combinations.

FOR THE LOVE OF HIS MOTHER.—The late Col. Thomas H. Benton, author of the Thirty Years' View, lived thirty years amidst all the temptations of fashionable dissipated life in Washington, yet never could be tempted to touch his lips to a glass of liquor. At one time, being pressed by his friends to say why he was so severely strict in refusing to take a "social glass," he replied, with great solemnity: "My father died when I was eight years old, and my poor mother struggled hard to give me an education. On her deathbed she asked me to promise that I would never drink. I did so, and shall never break my promise." Col. Benton died at the advanced age of seventy-six.

Mathew McKay, of Oswego, N. Y., has been bothered at finding his clock stopped mornings. He had it examined, but the repairer could find nothing wrong. He watched and discovered the family cat to be the cause of the mischief. Attracted by the ticking of the clock, she climbed up to the shelf, pulled open the door, and pawed the hands around the dial till it stopped.

A college Professor once tried to convince Horace Greeley of the value of classic languages. The Professor said: "These languages are the conduits of the literary treasures of antiquity." Mr. Greeley replied: "I like Croton water very well, but it doesn't follow that I should eat a yard or two of lead pipe."

Frank Buckland, the naturalist, recommends a goat being kept in all large stables, because it will face fire and horses will follow its lead. In view of the frightful losses by fire in the Eighth avenue and other stables within the past year, this advice is timely.

April in History

[N. Y. Times.]

The month of April, despite the mildness proverbially ascribed to it, has been a stormy one in history. The 1st is the birthday of Prince Bismarck and the anniversary of General Sheridan's victory at Five Forks, which virtually decided the fate of Richmond. The general assault upon Lee's lines before that city took place on the 2d, and its occupation by the Union armies on the 3d. The last named day has another and not inferior distinction as the birthday of Washington Irving. Sir. Henry Havelock the hero of Lucknow, was born on the 5th. The 6th witnessed one of the bloodiest struggles of modern times—the famous storming of Badajoz, where 50 per cent. of the British attacking force perished in the assault. On the same day the French Terrorist, Danton, was sent to the guillotine by his former friend, Robespierre. Dr. W. E. Channing was born on the 8th. The 9th is the birthday of Lord Bacon, the anniversary of Lee's surrender to General Grant, and that of Admiral Rodney's famous sea-fight with the French Comte de Grasse, which, renewed some days later, ended in the capture of de Grasse himself, and the greater part of his fleet. On the 10th occurred Wellington's great victory at Toulouse, and the great Chartist demonstration in London (1848). Fort Pulaski was taken on the 11th, Fort Sumter bombarded on the 12th. The 14th, already memorable for the defeat and death of Warwick, "The King-maker," at Barnet, during the wars of the Roses, has acquired a wider and sadder renown from the murder of President Lincoln. On the 15th Gustavus Adolphus defeated and slew Count Tilly. On the 16th, the Russian Nihilist, Karakozkoff, made his abortive attempt to shoot the present Czar (1866), and Garibaldi landed in Sicily. The 18th witnessed the execution of Tantia Tobee, one of the most prominent actors in the Sepoy mutiny of 1857. The 19th is doubly famous for the battles of Lexington and Concord and for the death of Byron. The unjust condemnation by Louis XV. of the heroic Count Lally, the last and bravest defender of the French power in India, marks the 22d, which has the additional distinction of the birth of Emanuel Kant, "the king of German metaphysicians." The 23d, by a singular coincidence, has the twofold renown of being the birthday and deathday of Shakespeare. On the 25th John Wilkes Booth, the murderer of Lincoln, was overtaken and killed by the Union cavalry, and General Joseph E. Johnston surrendered the Confederate Army of South Carolina. The 28th is the birthday of Russia's greatest military engineer, General Todleben; the 29th that of the Czar himself. To this list may be added several of Napoleon's earliest victories over the Austrians in 1797, the departure of the Anglo-French armament for the Black Sea in 1854, the treaty by which England, three years later, forced Persia to restore Herat to Afghanistan, and Russia's declaration of war against Turkey in 1877.

An anecdote is told of a physician who was called to a foreign family to prescribe for a case of incipient consumption. He gave them a prescription for pills and wrote the direction: "One pill to be taken three times a day, in any convenient vehicle." The family looked in the dictionary to get at the meaning of the prescription. They got on well until they got to the word vehicle. They found "cart, carriage, wagon, buggy, wheelbarrow." After grave consideration they came to the conclusion that the doctor meant the patient should ride out, and while in the vehicle he should take the pill. he followed the advice to the letter, and in a few weeks the fresh air and exercise secured the advantage which otherwise might not have come.

A gentleman well known in agriculture for forty years says that having answered by mail many questions of inquiring strangers, supplying his own paper and envelopes and prepaying postage, he will in the future abide by the following rule: "If a man sends me a single 3-cent stamp I will answer on a postal card. If he sends two stamps, so as to pay for stationery, I will then answer per letter. If he sends no stamp, I will not notice his request."

It was in the old days when Congressmen franked letters that a rural Postmaster returned a letter to an M. C., who was stopping in town, and stating that the letter weighed over one-half ounce, requested a second frank.

The Montevideo (Minn.) Leader mentions an amusing case of breach of promise, which was kept out of Court by the prompt delivery of a three-year-old bull to the parents of the disappointed damsel.

One of the great needs of this country is a thirty-two-buttoned kid glove, which, when too much soiled for the hand, can be used for a stocking.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C. April 26th, 1880.

The Odd Fellows to-day will celebrate their 61st Anniversary in this city. It is intended to be a memorable occasion. There will be a parade which will be reviewed on Pennsylvania Avenue by the officers of the grand encampment, and at the White House by the President.

The National Fair Association of this city are already moving to place themselves in good condition for a great fair next Fall. They propose to make it one of the permanent attractions of Washington.

The death of Ezra B. French takes from the Treasury Department one of the oldest and best officers in it. He has held the position of Second Auditor ever since Mr. Lincoln's time. Very few public officers serve so well and as long as he.

The Democrats have been getting larger doses of disagreeable facts about the treatment of the negroes South than at first, through the Exodus Committee. Any other organization than the Democratic party would have abandoned that hunt long ago, but they rush on recklessly to their death with their usual facility. Voorhees will not be likely to make his report early enough to have effect on the coming campaign; and perhaps that is why he is dragging the investigation out to its utmost length.

There is much talk about General Garfield's District in Ohio having elected two Blaine delegates to Chicago, and some persons try to make it appear that this is a defeat for General Garfield. It is not so. General Garfield is not opposed to Senator Blaine, but is friendly to him, and would enter into the campaign with vigor should the Maine Senator be nominated. The two leaders are very warm friends.

Democratic economy and efficiency are illustrated in the action of the managers in the House. They wasted fifty hours the other day in preventing the Republicans debating the bill one hour, which was all the time our friends asked for. Afraid to open their mouths themselves, they are bound to spend a good deal of choking off others. But it is not a very profitable policy for the Government.

It is evident that the Southern Delegations to Chicago will be defeated, or nearly all of them. The policy of most of the Southern men will be to go to Chicago uninstructed and be free to consult and act with the delegates who represent the Republican States as to who should be nominated. This is the proper way, because the Republican States should have the greatest weight in the choice of candidates, and they will of course choose those who will make the best run.

MAXWELL.

NOT WANTED.—The Postmaster General has established a new mail route over the Amador Wagon Road, from Sutter Creek, Amador county, to Woodford's, Alpine county. Such a route will be as useful as one to the moon would be. The road is open only a few months in the Summer, and then there are but very few persons on the route above Volcano, and most of the mail matter can be sent to those on the road by the regular route to Woodford's from which place they are forwarded. The Department would do better in spending its money increasing the service on routes that are serviceable to the public.

Major General S. P. Heintzleman died in Washington on the 1st of May, having nearly reached the good old age of 75 years. He graduated from West Point in 1826, and took an active part in the Mexican war. During the Rebellion he also greatly distinguished himself. He was in the battle of Bull Run and was severely wounded. He also took part in the battle of Manasses Junction under Pope, and was in all the campaigns about Richmond. He was retired in 1869 with the rank of Major General. Thus are the old heroes passing away.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Wednesday last Judge W. P. Daingerfield, presiding Justice of the Superior Court of San Francisco, dropped dead on the bench. He was hearing a case when he suddenly threw up his hands, gasped once or twice, and expired instantly—probably from heart disease.—He was aged fifty-six. Judge Daingerfield was an able Judge, and his death will be greatly regretted.

Wisconsin Republicans refused to instruct their delegates to Chicago. The friends of Washburne, Sherman and Grant in the Convention combined to prevent the election of a single Blaine representative. In the Convention Grant had but 39 votes, while Blaine had 89, showing that if the vote of that State is cast for Grant in the National Convention it will not represent the wishes of the Republicans of that State.

STATE CONVENTIONS.—Next week will be a week of Conventions, and busy times politically. On Tuesday the Nevada Republican State Convention will meet and elect Blaine delegates to Chicago, and on Wednesday the Republicans of Florida, Michigan, West Virginia, will hold their Conventions to elect delegates to the National Convention.

New Hampshire elected a strong Blaine delegation to the Chicago Convention, but no instructions were given.

Delaware has elected Blaine delegates.

THE OUTLOOK.

It begins to look to men in the mountains that the success of General Grant at the Chicago Convention—should he receive the nomination for President—will jeopardize the Republican party, and cause the election of the Democratic nominee for President—should that nominee be a good man—but not Samuel J. Tilden. It cannot be denied that there are thousands of independent Republicans who will not support Grant with the zeal that they would bring into the canvass with Blaine at the head of the ticket—or even with Washburne as our standard bearer. There is a large element that is opposed to a third-term, be it with Grant or any other man, and they will vote consistently with that feeling. There are thousands of Germans who are opposed to Grant, but who would give an overwhelming support to Mr. Washburne, if he should prove to be the "dark horse."

We hope and believe that the coming Convention will not make the same mistake that disgusted the Republican party four years ago, but that it will nominate a pronounced Republican, and that James G. Blaine will be that man. This is too much of the "machine" in the opposition to Blaine to suit the Republican masses, and we have every confidence in the independence of the delegates from Pennsylvania and other States, that they will not be bulldozed into the support of any man, contrary to the wishes—known wishes—of their constituency, in the election of a Presidential candidate, and that the Camerons, Conkling, etc., will be sat down upon.

There is no Republican living that can carry a single Southern State, and it behooves the Convention to select a man who will poll the heaviest vote in the North, and carry a solid electoral vote against a solid South—as that section of our Union is destined to go solid for the Democratic nominee—be he saint or devil. With Blaine the Pacific States will be strongly Republican, but with Grant, and Thurman as the Democratic candidate, the electoral votes of California and Oregon would likely be cast for Thurman.

The Southern Republicans, who can have no earthly show to elect the man of their choice for President, should allow the Republicans of the North—who are to elect—to say who should be our standard bearer.

TAKE IT DOWN.—We suggest to our morning cotemporary the propriety of removing the name of Hon. Newton Booth from the head of its columns as its candidate for Vice President. Mr. Booth is a strong Blaine man, and under no circumstances would he be put on a ticket with Grant.

THE CHRONICLE.

BODIE, MAY 8, 1880.

The CHRONICLE Office is on the second floor of "Goodson's Building," east side of Main street, between Standard Avenue and Green street.

JOB PRINTING.—Job printing of the finest description will be furnished at this office at Sacramento prices.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

NO SEWER.—The sewer question seems to be at rest, so far as any action is being taken to run a sewer through our town. The residents of upper Main street, however, have been wide awake and drained their portion of the city by deepening and enlarging the ditch from Booker Flat. That part of the city is now dry, and if the property owners of lower Main street will do likewise the slum holes that now disgrace the town below the Mollinelli House would be quickly drained and the street have a show to dry up. Unless some steps are taken toward a drainage, the "boom" of the medical profession will soon be at hand. This lukewarmness is doing our town no good, as a number of our citizens have sent their families below, and others intend to do so if something is not done to secure the health of the city this coming Summer.

BUILDING GRANITE.—William Elliott of this city, is the fortunate owner of a granite quarry, situated 1½ miles south west of Bodie. This granite has been tested at the Standard forge, where it was subjected to a great heat and then plunged into cold water, without cracking or flaking it in the least degree. It is a splendid building stone, and Mr. Elliott will contract to erect buildings at a cost much less than brick ones will cost—saying nothing about the greater permanency of granite, and the surety of being fire-proof. We hope some of our enterprising business men will look into this matter, and grace our young and thriving city with a fine fire-proof granite building.

OUR NEW JUDGE.—Yesterday our new Superior Judge, Hon. Marcus D. Wiggin, accompanied by Paul Bennett, came over from Bridgeport and will remain here until Monday. The Judge has made the acquaintance of the members of the Bar and our leading citizens, and has made a favorable impression on all. Last evening we had the pleasure of a call from him and Mr. Bennett. Judge Wiggin will open his Court next week, after which courting at Bridgeport will be lively, if not profitable and pleasant to many.

MINING MACHINERY.—We invite the attention of mining men to the advertisement of the Risdon Iron Works, of San Francisco. These well-known works have furnished a large number of our mines with their machinery and given general satisfaction. It is one of the oldest foundries on the coast, and perfectly reliable. Some of the heaviest machinery in our camp came from the Risdon Iron Works.

GETTING READY.—The Big Meadows and Bodie Wagon road is being placed in good order for travel. In another column will be found a notice that tolls will not be credited hereafter. "Pay as you go" is the order of the Company. "No more credit, by the Eternal.

CUT OFF.—The Standard is getting to be economical, having cut us off without "a shilling." It has stricken the CHRONICLE from its exchange list! We can stand it, but we pity the readers of that paper, if it don't have the CHRONICLE to clip from for its Monday edition.

BRIDGEPORT UNION.—The UNION has its office in Howell's Building, Main street. It has three young ladies engaged as compositors. Its first issue will be on Saturday next, the 15th instant.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—The Board met in regular session on Monday last, and during the week has been engaged in passing upon bills. It will probably remain in session during the whole of next week.

THE ROADS.—Over three-quarters of the road between Bodie and Bridgeport are in good order, and a few days more of fine weather will place the whole in good condition.

WEDGED.—The News and Standard are getting pretty well "timbered" up by the Free Press. That land business is a "bonanza" which enables the Press to squeeze its rivals.

SOME WORK.—The amount of business in the County Clerk's office can be inferred from the fact that there are four deputies busily employed in writing.

TO ADVERTISERS.—Advertisements for the BODIE CHRONICLE, or BRIDGEPORT UNION, will be inserted in both papers—a desirable medium for advertising.

SUPERIOR JUDGE.—Superior Judge M. P. Wiggin arrived at Bridgeport on Thursday last. He is favorably spoken of by those who know him.

A CHANGE.—A mud wagon has been substituted for the buckboard lately running between Bodie and Bridgeport.

HOARSE.—The Standard Mill whistle has a bad cold, and its voice is unpleasant hoarse.

ANTELOPE.—It is expected that the road to Antelope Valley will be open for travel within the next ten days.

RELIGIOUS.—Divine Service is held in Miners' Union Hall every Sunday at 10 A. M., by Rev. I. M. Cassin, Catholic Priest.

MINING LOCATIONS.—The following locations have been recorded by Recorder Geo. Macartney:

Reliance, 1500 feet, south of the Great Republic, on Nevada Hill; George Marian.

Lady Elgin, 1500 feet, 200 yards north east of the Standard Spring; William Henry and M. Clain.

Parnell, 1500 feet, north of and adjoining the above, and same locators.

Trinidad, 1500 feet, discovered in Aurora Tunnel; W. P. Holmes.

Nahant, 1500 feet, discovered in Aurora Tunnel, and same locators as above.

Carnavon, 1500 feet, ledge in Aurora Tunnel, and same locator as above.

Reforma, 1500 feet, same as above.

Buenaventura, 1500 feet, discovered in the Paris claim; Thomas Steel.

Westmoreland, 1500 feet, discovered in Aurora Tunnel; W. P. Holmes.

Victor, 1500 feet, discovered in the Goodshaw, 520 level; Thos. Buckley.

Jupiter Q. M. Claim, 1500 feet, discovered in the west crosscut, No. 2. 500-level, Jupiter mine; W. P. Holmes.

GO SLOW.—We advise the editor of the Free Press, who is a Federal office holder, to go slow in regard to publishing slurs on the character of Hon. James G. Blaine. He may be obliged to eat crow after the Convention. The Republican papers that oppose the nomination of General Grant do not try to belittle him in the estimation of the people. They oppose him because the people have already honored him with two terms of the Presidency, and do not wish to see him again mixed up with politics. There is not a Republican in the land that does not honor the name of Grant in the highest sense, and so honoring him they dislike to see him again in politics, particularly with such men as Cameron and Conkling as his main backers.

FRESH CANDIES.—For fresh candies go to Mrs. Swan's confectionery store in Abbot's building on Main street, between Standard Avenue and Mill street. She keeps the finest French candies and home-made molasses candy

JUST RECEIVED.—Choice, Creamy Butter in rolls, from one of the best California dairies at Point Reyes. For sale by Page, Wheaton & Co., dealer in choice family groceries.

FINE DISPLAY.—L. Hollander has a fine display of rich jewelry in his show window and cases. He has some magnificent setsy and diamond lockets that are "perfectly lovely."

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. G. B. Hinkle will hold divine services in Odd Fellows' Hall, tomorrow at 11 o'clock A. M. and 7½ o'clock P. M. Sabbath School at 2 P. M. All are cordially invited to attend.

THE BODIE EXTENSION.—I. E. James, the well known civil and mining engineer, started yesterday over the route of the proposed extension of the Virginia & Truckee Railroad in company with James Oliver, who has had general charge of the survey, in order to give the benefit of his experience and to decide finally just what route to take. The road will soon be begun, and will be a narrow gauge, three feet wide. Steel rails varying in weight from 35 to 45 pounds to the yard, will be laid the entire length and all freight and passengers will necessarily be transferred at the Mound House. We understand that the lot of 56-pound steel rails purchased in England several months ago by D. O. Mills, have recently been exchanged for those of lighter weight, suitable for the narrow gauge. The company will save by the adoption of a three-foot gauge not less than $250,000 in cost of construction.—Carson Times, 5th.

THE NEW COMET.—The new Telenopir comet which has just appeared is now a few degrees, eight or ten times the moon's apparent diameter, to the left of the polar star. It is too faint to be seen by the naked eye, although it is large enough, being about a fifth of the moon's diameter, six minutes. Its position, the direction in which it is moving, and, above all, the fact that it already has a tail, although a great distance from the sun, make it probable that it will be a brilliant object by June 1st. The comet seen last December in Australia, but missed altogether in the northern hemisphere, was a brilliant affair, and is made the subject of somewhat vivid illustrations by the Sydney illustrated papers.—Springfield Republican.

BODIE RAILROAD.—The completion of the Bodie branch of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad will give a new impetus and new life to mining enterprises of all kinds in the eastern part of the State. Many persons will then go out that way and take hold of mines who are now deterred by the thought of the many miles of tedious wagon transportation that must be taken into the account when figuring on machinery, supplies or freight of any kind. The road will make new towns, new camps and almost a new country out east.—Enterprise.

The boiler, heater, engine and pumps to be used in the new seaside hotel at Monterey, are being constructed at the Railroad shops in Sacramento.

It is said that Rufus Shoemaker will again take editorial charge of the Grass Valley Union.

The Workingmen of Oakland have affiliated with the Democrats. That is only going back to their first love.

President Hayes has vetoed the Deficiency Appropriation bill because of the Democratic "riders" attached to it.

OUR MINES.

The following are the latest official reports:

LAST CHANCE.

BODIE May 8th, 1880.

GEO. A. FISHER, Secretary.—DEAR SIR: The crosscut from station on 300-foot level has been advanced during the past week 12 feet, total length 20 feet, with no change to note in formation. We cut a vein, about 2 feet in width, when in about 12 feet from station, and pitching slightly to the west. This vein has good clay walls, and the vein matter is quartz and clay, some of which gives fair milling assays. The vein posseses every characteristic of a strong permanent vein, and I would advise running a drift upon it as soon as we can get machinery to hoist the rock. Our machinery is working well, but hoisting capacity is very limited, and should be replaced with steam machinery at an early date.

MARTIN JONES, Supt.

TIOGA.

BODIE, May 6th 1880.

W. H. LEST, Secretary. DEAR SIR: Our east crosscut, 800-foot level, was advanced 14 feet during the past week. We have cut through a vein of quartz 2 feet wide, which prospects very well by the horn process. Are having assays made from this vein this afternoon. West crosscut, same level, had 27 feet added to its length since last report. There is considerable quartz coming in on the face of this drift, and the porphyry is very favorable in character. We have timbered 40 feet of the Syndicate tunnel during the week. The hoisting tank is completed and we are now using it for hoisting water for the boiler.

C. H. GOLDING, Supt.

HOMER M. & M. Co.

BODIE May 8th, 1880.

F. E. LUTY, Secretary.—DEAR SIR: The east crosscut from the Crevasse tunnel, has reached a distance of 42 feet from the starting point; face of the work is in good blasting ground, with no change to note in formation. The west crosscut, from same tunnel, is in 144 feet; rock is somewhat harder, and progress correspondingly slow. The contractors, getting out square timbers, have 25,000 feet ready to be delivered. We shall be able to get our heaviest timbers very near the mill-site. The trail is open, and pack animals can deliver freight to the town of Wasson, at or near our mill-site. The toll road to be constructed over the same route will be completed by June 1st. It is about complete to within 1½ miles of our works, and a force of 25 men at work. Weather settled and snow melting rapidly.

MARTIN JONES. Supt.

MCCLINTON.

R. F. Lord, Supt.

There is nothing new to report this week. The shaft is being sunk, with energy and under favorable circumstances, and everything about the mine is working well.

NEW PATENTS.—Dewey & Co.'s Scientific Press Patent Agency has received official notice of the issue of the following patents to Pacific coast inventors, for the week ending April 27, 1880:

226,824, E. T. Barlow. S. F., car coupling; 226,901, C. H. Carter, S. F., machine for making metallic laths; 226,809, J. Freilocher and F. Mahler, S. F., washing machine; 227,022, N. C. Value of a Doctor's Services.

[N. Y. Medical Record.

I was called at midnight to visit a gentleman who had just returned from a late dinner, where he had succeeded by hasty eating in lodging a large fish-bone in his throat. I provided myself with an emetic, a pair of œsophagus forceps and other paraphernalia designed to give him relief, and hurriedly repaired to his room. I found him pacing up and down the floor with a look of intense distress and anxiety, occasionally running his fingers down his throat and gagging. He told me, in tones of despair, that he thought it was all up with him, but begged me if the least glimmer of hope remained, to proceed at once in my efforts to relieve him. He extravagantly declared in the generosity of spirit begot by the vividness of his fears, that he would give a million dollars to have that fish-bone removed. I assured him that such cases were frequent, and ordinarily not attended with much danger, before proceeding to carry out measures for relief. His fears underwent some diminution on the strength of this, and he then declared that fifty thousand dollars would no more than repay the skill of art required to extricate the unwelcome intruder. I smiled and proceeded to introduce the forceps, but after several attempts failed to grasp the bone. His fears again induced him to mention a fabulous sum as the need of the service that would expel the object of his terrors. I then gave him the emetic, its depressing effect causing his generosity to rise again, barometric-like, to avery high pressure. In a little while the emetic disburdened him of the greater part of his dinner, and with it up came the fish-bone. He gave a sigh and look of relief, and solemnly looking toward me said, "Doctor, I would not have that thing in my throat again for $5!" My fee eventually resolved itself into "valuable experience" that the occasion afforded me.

There seems to be but little prospect of an early termination of the South American war, if any value is to be placed on oaths. At the beginning of the struggle 757 officers of the Bolivian Army, all above the grade of Sub-Lieutenant, swore the following frightful oath, with a request that posterity would take note of it: "We, who carry a sword at our girdle, which our Fatherland has confided to us to defend it and preserve intact its honor, swear a thousand times over not to sheathe that sword before avenging the outrage which Chili has committed on Bolivia. And to fulfil these oaths we are prepared for every sacrifice: beginning by the renouncement of salaries, and subjecting ourselves to camp rations, on the same scale as the soldiers. Thus be it, and let posterity judge us."

Two gushing Boston girls were walking one day in the suburbs of the Hub, when they stumbled on a little, old fashioned mile-stone, forgotten in the march of improvement. One of them stooped, and parting the grass, discovered the half-effaced inscription, "1 m. from Boston," upon which she exclaimed: "Here is a grave, perhaps of some young girl, who wished it written on her tombstone, 'I'm from Boston.' How touching! so simple, and so sufficient!"

Why don't you give this butter four bits?" remarked a boarder to the landlady yesterday at dinner, as he grabbed for something in his mouth he could not find.

"What for? what do you mean?" anxiously asked the landlady.

"So it can go and get its hair cut," replied the boarder, as he reached for a slice of bread.

Great men do not consider themselves above everybody else; 'tis those ignorant little runts who wear stand-up collars and sport canes, and who refuse to pay their washing bills, that think everyone beneath them.

When pastors preach against the vanity of false things, the ladies know switch is which.

It is one thing to try to behave like a gentleman and quite another to be a gentleman and not need to try.
